Reconnect with Agricultural Heritage: Visit the Huddleston Farmers' Market

Huddleston Farmhouse is now home to the Huddleston Farmers' Market

Cambridge City—On June 2, the Huddleston Farmers' Market opened at the Huddleston Farmhouse/National Road Heritage Site. Sponsoring the market is Indiana Landmarks' Eastern Regional Office. This market is unique in the way it reconnects visitors to the agricultural heritage of the Huddleston Farm.

The Huddleston Farmers' Market is open Saturdays from 8:00am—Noon, from June 2 through October 27.

The market has seven vendors and is growing weekly. Vendors are encouraged to sell home grown, home made items and produce.

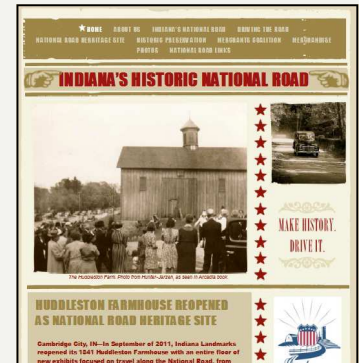

In conjunction with the farmers' market, the Huddleston Farmhouse and National Road Heritage Site are open for tours. Visitors' can experience the history of the Historic National Road, from its inception in 1806, to the modern motels of the 1950s.

The Indiana National Road Association will have Historic National Road memorabilia for sale at the market.

For more information or to become a vendor contact Indiana Landmarks' Eastern Regional Office at 765-478-3172 or east@indianalandmarks.org www.indiananationalroad.org is now up and running. The website design was created by 2011 Summer Intern, Anya Grahn, and is currently administered by our Executive Director, Joe Frost. The website is the internet home of INRA, and a resource to visitors of the National Road.

Website up and running!

Soon, the site will include links to news like, Roadwork, and provide resources to historic property owners along the National Road. Check it out!

Saratoga 70 years old.

Terre Haute—The Saratoga restaurant is celebrating its 70th anniversary. In 1942, the Saratoga got its start. It is situated on the Historic National Road at 5th and Wabash. Congrats Saratoga!
