Around the World Via the National Road

Excerpt from Western Wayne News:

"Matt and Ant" Going Around the World

By: Janis Buhl

Anthony King and Matthew Angrecos, both of London, England, are riding their bicycles around the world to raise awareness for Brain Tumour UK. They left London, then rode 1500 miles to Lisbon, Portugal where they took a plane to New York. Matt is a teacher in London, who had worked with Tony Young at King Alfred Schools. When Tony died at age 41 of a brain tumor, Matthew decided to do a ride to raise awareness and funds for those with brain tumors. His college friend, Anthony King, a commercial diver for an environmental agency, decided to ride with him and they hope to reach home by Christmas 2013.

Installation Begins on National Road Panels

Cambridge City—Installation has begun on the Historic National Road Interpretive Panels. Across the State, from Richmond to Terre Haute, 15 panels will inform tourists and residents about the history and significance of the National Road.

To date, all of the foundations have been set. After Thanksgiving, the panels will be placed.

In the early 2000s, the project was started with the creation of the Indiana National Road Association’s Interpretive Master Plan. The plan called for the interpretation of significant locations along the Road. INRA utilized a TE grant and local match funds to research, develop, and install the 15 panels.

ERO Holiday Open House

Centerville—Indiana Landmarks—Eastern Regional Office is hosting their annual Holiday Open House on November 30th. From 5:30-7:30 Indiana Landmarks members and friends will enjoy food, wine and two great historic houses.

Dr. Ron Morris, Ball State University professor, will open his Oliver P. Morton House. Once owned by Indiana Governor Morton. Dr. Morris is currently restoring the property. Marcia Hoyt, proprietor of the Lantz House Inn, will open her property, now a well known bed and breakfast, for the festivities. The Lantz House has been fully restored. Don’t miss this opportunity!
